LATEST RELEASE

15th International Brigade, British Battalion flags: Paper sheet with three textured historical flags. Available at 1:100th, 1:72nd and 1:56th scales simultaneously!

GOING NEXT

Sculpted by:
Angel Terol

1:72 scale (20mm) Militia Female casualties: Greens were completed some weeks ago and are in foundry now. We expect to release them in the first half of July. Set will comprise four wounded/dead Militia girls in bag with headcard. Stay tuned!

1/72 scale Wine Cellar. Already available for pre-order!

11th International Brigade flags: Paper sheet with three textured historical flags belonging to this SCW unit, also known as Thälmann Brigade. Already printed and awaiting release!

WHAT ELSE ON WORKBENCHES

1/600 scale Spanish galleon: This long lasting project is finally about to reach to an end. Hull is finished, and mast & sails sets are close to completion too. I'm quite happy with design results, as well as excited and optimistic at the prospective of releasing it soon.

1:600 scale 17th century Naval Ensigns: Optimistic enough, as said, for starting to forecast some due complements to the upcoming naval range: naval ensigns, mast flags and pennants of several countries --starting with the Spanish Peninsula ones first, but the rest of major naval powers of that time too. Suggestions warmly welcome!

AWAITING THEIR CHANCE

1/72 scale L3/33 Carro Veloce tankette, and 1/144 scale Breguet XIX light bomber: Both models are just awaiting to be brought to moulds and tooled. I must avoid the temptation to crowd projects, but to develop and release the one after the other. Rather than a matter of choice, it's a matter of wisdom –especially if having into account the limited budget at hand!

1/72 and 1/100 Harley Davidson Flathead: Designing process is already over. In the next weeks we'll 3D print them and continue creation process.

I guess this will still take some time before any substantial progress can be shown. We're probably going to make some resin copies, before ultimately bringing them into white metal. I'll keep you informed.
